

My Dearest Ashu,

HAPPY BIRTHDAY. (And I Love You)

I've been sitting here, trying to figure out how to fit everything I want to tell you into just a few pages.

How do you write a letter to someone who means this much? How do you turn feelings into words when feelings are so much bigger than the language?

Maybe you can't.

But I'm going to try anyway.

If this letter becomes anything, I hope it's something you can come back to whenever life feels too much. I hope on such days, these words remind you of something the world hasn't always reminded you of.

You MATTER.

Not because of what you've achieved or everything you've been through. It's also not cuz that you're always strong, smiling, kind.

You MATTER BECAUSE YOU'RE YOU! And that has always been enough.

IK life hasn't been kind to you.

(Being You)

There were chapters that should have never happened. Moments no child, teenager, person should ever have to go through. People who should've protected your heart didn't. People who should've made you feel safe instead gave you reasons to be scared. People who should have stayed honest chose to break the trust you gave them. If I could change those chapters, I would. If I could go back in time and stand next to younger Ashu, I would.

I'd tell her none of it was her fault.

I'd tell her that one day she'd grow into someone with such a beautiful heart that, despite everything, she'd still find reasons to care about others. (And Love ME)

Most of all, I'd tell her she was enough.

Because she always was and is enough.

Sometimes the world has a cruel way of making good people doubt themselves. It makes them wonder if they were too much, too emotional, too sensitive, too hard to love. It whispers lies until the lies start sounding like truth.

I hope you never believe those lies again.

Nothing that's happened to you made you less worthy of Love.
Nothing has made you less ~~too~~ deserving of kindness.

Nothing has made you "Too Broken".

Nothing has taken away your value. Not even for a second.

The pain you've carried is a part of your story, but it isn't the whole story. You're so much more than the things that hurt you. You're the way you laugh when something genuinely makes you happy.

You're the way you notice little details other people miss. (P.s. You're my Sun & Moon)

You're the warmth you give to the people you care about. You're your curiosity, your kindness, your quiet strength, your softness, your silly moments, your dreams, your smile, your stubbornness, your soft voice. (Pretty eyes too)

That's who you are. Not your wounds, scars or your past.

When I think of you those aren't the first thing that come to mind I think of Ashu.

The girl who still hopes, even after being let down.

The girl whose heart refuses to stop loving, even after being hurt.

And honestly that's one of the most beautiful things about you.

So before this birthday turns into gifts, celebrations, or just another year going by, I want this to be the first thing you remember: You've never needed to earn your worth.

You've never needed to become "better" to deserve love.

You've never needed to hide your flaws or parts of yourself that feel fragile.

You were enough yesterday. You're enough today. And you'll still be enough tomorrow.

Happy Birthday, my dearest ~~wife~~. (Sweet girlfriend)

I hope this letter reminds you, even just a little, of something that's always been true: You have always been worthy of being loved ♥

If there's one thing I wish I could do, it's to let yourself see yourself through my eyes.

Not for a day, not even an hour. Just for a few minutes.

Because I think you'd finally understand why I smile whenever I think about you. (I smile so much in class cuz of tis " ")

You'd stop seeing yourself through the eyes of people who failed to love you the right way, and start seeing yourself through the eyes of someone who genuinely adores you!

When I look at you, I don't see someone broken. I don't see someone whos "too much". I don't see someone who needs fixing before she deserves love.

I just see Ashu.

I see someone with an unbelievably sweet heart. Someone who notices small things about me. Someone who cares more deeply she lets herself admit.

Someone who can be incredibly strong and incredibly soft at the same time. Someone who makes my ordinary conversations special.

(And someone who likes to tease and Bully little me!!)

~~Those~~ Those are things I notice.

Those are the things I hope you notice too, one day.!

I know there have been days your own thoughts have been louder than anyone else's voice.

Days you've questioned your worth.

Days you've wondered if people would be happier without your fears, your worries, your emotions.

I wish I could sit next to every version of you that ever thought that and gently tell her she was wrong.

Because your feelings have never made you a burden.

Your tears never made you weak. Your ~~f~~ issues never made it hard to love you. I hope you know you don't always have to be the strong one.

You don't have to force a smile when you're exhausted.

You don't have to pretend everything's fine because you're scared ppl will leave if they see you struggling.

You don't have to hide the messy parts of yourself. (Gosh your messy hair)

You don't have to earn patience. You don't have to earn comfort or peace.

And you definitely don't have to earn love. Love isn't something you're only supposed to deserve after you've healed.

It's something you deserve even while you're healing.

Even on the days you don't feel like yourself.

Even on the days you overthink everything.

Even on the days your heart feels tired and you're too exhausted to reciprocate it.

Even then.

Especially then, cuz loving someone means loving with whole heart without expecting it in return. That's the kind of love you deserve.

If I could make one promise, it wouldn't be that life will never hurt you, again, cuz that's not something anyone can promise. But,

I can promise this:

Whenever you forget your worth, I'll remind you. Whenever you doubt yourself, I'll remind you of the person I know & love. Whenever your past tries to tell you you're not worthy of good things, I hope my words are louder than these doubts. Because I want you to know what I already know.

You deserve honesty. You deserve consistency. You deserve kindness that doesn't disappear the moment things get hard. You deserve ppl that stay because they want to, not because you had to convince them. You deserve to feel safe enough to just be yourself. You deserve to laugh without guilt. You deserve quiet nights where your mind is at peace. Most of all, you deserve to be loved without feeling like you have to earn it every single day.

Please don't think your scars make you less worthy. They don't.

Don't think the hardest chapters of your life define who you are. They don't. They're Page. Not the title. The title of your story is still being written.

And when I think about that story, I don't see someone just surviving.

I see someone slowly finding peace. Someone slowly learning to trust herself again. Someone slowly realizing happiness doesn't always have to end in heartbreak.

Someone slowly discovering she's always been enough.

I hope one day you believe that as deeply as I do!

As I write this, I keep thinking about the future I want ^{for} with you.
Not the kind kind measured by achievements, grades, jobs, or success.
The kind measured by Peace.

I Hope one day you wake up and realize your heart isn't carrying yesterday anymore. I Hope mornings become peaceful. I hope your night become quiet instead of filled with thoughts that won't let you rest. I hope one day happiness won't feel temporary. I Hope you stop waiting for something to go wrong everytime life finally feels okay. I hope you slowly stop apologizing for taking up space. I hope you stop saying sorry for things that never were your fault. I hope you learn your feelings deserve to exist, even the hard ones.

Most of all, I Hope you become the safest place you've ever known. Because no matter where life takes you, you'll always have yourself with you.

I Hope you learn to talk to yourself with the same kindness you so easily give everyone else. I Hope that one day, when you look in the mirror, the first thing you notice isn't what you think is wrong with you.

I Hope you see the person I see.

A girl whose kindness survived things that could've made her cold, whose heart still chooses compassion, A girl who still laughs, who still dreams.

A girl who's so much stronger than she realizes, yet so wonderfully gentle at the same time.

You have every right to be proud of yourself. Because even though life wasn't easy, you never let it take the goodness out of you.

That's rare. Healing is a strange thing.

Some days it feels like you've come so far, other days it feels like you're right back where you started.

I hope on those hard days, you remember healing isn't about being perfect.

It's about continuing. Choosing Tomorrow. Giving yourself another chance.

Believing that even after the hardest winters, spring still comes.

I hope your future is full of ppl who makes you feel safe instead of unsure.

People who choose honesty even when lying would be easier. Ppl who listen instead of judging. People who celebrate your happiness instead of questioning if you deserve it.

I hope your future home is full of warmth. With laughter still echoing in rooms. With convos that end in understanding instead of silence. With hugs that feel like home.

With little moments that seem ordinary but become your fav memories years later.

I hope you travel to places you've always wanted to see.

I hope you find hobbies that make you lose track of time.

I hope you dance when your fav songs comes on, even if no one's watching.

I hope you laugh so hard your tummy hurts. I hope you cry only cuz something is beautiful.

I hope you meet versions of yourself you've never had the chance to become.

The Confident ASHU. The Carefree ASHU. The Peaceful ASHU.

The ASHU That no longer wonders if she's enough.

Because she is.

She has always been.

And if life ever tries to convince you otherwise, I hope you remember this letter. Read it slowly, every word. Not because my words are magic, but because every sentence was written with complete honesty. Every wish in these pages comes from wanting nothing more than to see you happy.

If I could pick one gift for you that would last forever, it wouldn't be something you could wrap in paper. "It would be quiet certainty in your heart that you are loved, valued, respected, and enough exactly as you are." If that wish could come true, I think it'd be the most beautiful gift anyone could get. (with me etc)
And more than anything, I hope that year after year, your life becomes softer, a little brighter, and a little kinder than the year before. Because if anyone deserves that..... It's You.

Before I end this letter, there's one thing I want to say. (I love you alot) (It's a diff thing tho)

Thank You.

Thank you for existing.

Thank you for every conversation we've had, every laugh that caught me off guard, every little moment that probably felt ordinary to you but meant more to me than you'll ever know. Thank you for trusting me with parts of yourself that weren't always easy to share.

some day I hope
we can date again and oke gain your trust

I know trust doesn't come easily when life has given you reasons to be careful. That's why I'll never take it for granted. Everytime you've let me know you a little better, it's been a gift, and I'll always treasure that. You've taught alot things to me. You've shown me that even after being hurt, someone can still choose hope over fear, and ~~love~~ love over hate.

I admire this alot about you.

I don't know what ~~far~~ future holds for us. Life changes. People grow. Dreams change. (exchange those words)

But no matter where life takes you, I hope you never forget my words.

I hope you never forget your worth was never up to someone else to recognize.

When life feels unfair, I hope you remember hard seasons don't last forever. When your mind fills with doubt, I hope small parts of my voice reminds you that those doubts aren't facts.

When you succeed, I hope you celebrate instead of looking for reasons you didn't deserve it. When you make mistakes, I hope you forgive yourself. And when you're happy... I hope you let yourself be happy without waiting for something to ruin it.

~~Ad And I hope you know that, during our time together as couples, I never once thought of you as a burden or childish or too much.~~

~~You had your flaws, but they only made you a even beautifed person.~~

~~You were sweetest person. All I could ever ask. (I hope we never do)~~

~~Though we aren't together, maybe we might even stop talking.~~

~~I Hope you remember that, I Love you. Genuintly. Honestly.~~

~~And I'll continue to love you. its not cuz of my issues or anything. I just truly adore you.~~

And.

You deserve joy that doesn't need permission!
You deserve peace that isn't temporary!
You deserve love that doesn't make you question your worth!
You deserve to feel safe!
You deserve to feel chosen!
You deserve to feel seen!
You deserve to feel loved!

It's all cuz only one reason.
You ARE ASHU!

As another year of your life begins, my birthday wish for you is simple.
May you become everything you always dreamt of!
May your heart grow lighter!
May your smile come easier!
May your days be full of ppl that cherish you!
May your nights be full of peace.
May you never stop dreaming.

Happy Birthday, my Dearest ASHU, my love, my girlfriend, my first love, my home, my sun,

my moon. my most cherished person, my babygirl, my bee,
my honey, my sweetheart, mera baccha.

Remember prince will always loves you!

I Love You Ashmita ♥

HAPPIEST BIRTHDAY

yours,

Prince.

I love you ♥